FLANDREAU FULLBLOOD LEAVES WITH SOLDIERS

Pipestone, Minn., March 25 .-When the contingent of soldiers left here for Fort Snelling this week in the group was Nathan Taylor. a fullblood Flandreau Sioux Indian. of this place. Mrs. Julia Taylor, widow of the late "Indian Joe" Taylor, came here from Flandreau to say goodbye to her son.

Mrs. Taylor now has three sons with Uncle Sam's fighting forces.

Flandreau Fullblood Leaves with Soldiers

Mrs. Taylor was born in Nebraska, and her maiden name was Julia Crow. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. George Crow, of Center, Nebr. In 1904 she married Joseph C. Taylor, a full blood Mdewakanton Sioux Indian, well educated, and ordained as a minister of the Episcopal church. The late Bishop Harre, of Sioux Falls, arranged for him to study and later to teach. Mr. Taylor was also an expert in fine handwork, making and engraving peacepipes and other articles of the famous Indian stone, the red pipestone, found in this vicinity. He died about 10 years ago.

late Rev. John Flute, was a fullblood Sisseton Sioux Indian, was a Presbyterian minister and one of the first Indians to settle at Flandreau. Her daughter, whose husband is in defense work, now lives

As Mrs. Taylor works in her garden or rests in the shade of the trees, she thinks of former days and her thoughts turn to her sons who have been overseas more than a year. The faith of this woman is expressed in these words. "I am worried about my boys day and night, but I know God will take

Salmon

Now that we have our first shippment, many of you may be wondering how the best way to prepare and cook the fish. Most of us may remember the canned salmon our parents and grandparents received from the commoditires years ago and how the ladies turned it into the notorious Salmon Loaf that appeared on many tables across Wakpa Ipaksan.

After many years of cooking professionally, I found the best way to prepare delicate filets is to use the French cooking method called en papillote, which involvers sealing the filet in a parchment bag along with aromatic vegtables, citrus fruits, seasonings, herbs and flavorful liquids such as honey, vinegars and lite oils. What ever your preference, it's always adviseable not overwhelm the filet but allow it's delicious flavor to be the star of your plate.

The idea behind this cooking method is that the steam and heat, created during the cooking process, gently cooks the fish to perfection, allowing aromatics and added flavorings to penetrate the filet. The bag will inflate with steam when sealed properly, letting you know that the time to eat is near. Slice the bag open after several minutes of being fulling inflated, allowing the steam to escape. Caution is needed when opening the bag to avoid a nasty steam burn while ensuring that the filet is cooked to your liking.

Nowdays, you can buy foil bags at the grocery store making this process nearly foolproof. For more information how to make your own and seal a parchment cooking bag, visit https://www.reynoldsbrands.com/tips-and-how-tos/how-make-parchment-packet.

Stay tuned in for distribution information.
